

Beginning my unofficial acting career at the young age of 8, I appeared in several stage plays. In 2016, I added film to my resume and began with my first on screen role as “Maureen” in “Riverment”, written and directed by Shayla Raquel. There I found another love in the arts... producing and directing film projects. In 2021, I created my company "The Colors of Conversation, LLC" and produced, directed, wrote and self-casted myself in "Get Marked, Reset, Go!" To date I have continued on that path in the role of “Mrs. Beasley” in the short film “Intersectionality” which takes a quick view into the world of a young girl’s life and how she maneuvers in her world of autism. This film was entered into the 2023-2024 film festivals and received 5 selection laurels.

I continue to stand on the belief...God has us exactly where He wants us to be; it’s up to us to be there and be on time.
